RAFI NIGHT

Celebrating the Voice of the Millennium

101st Birth Anniversary Commemoration of Mohammed Rafi & Memorial Night
for Thrissur Rafi (P K Jose)

“If anyone has the voice of God, it is Mohammed Rafi.” – Manmohan Desai

On this auspicious 101st birth anniversary, we gather to honour a man whose voice became the heartbeat of Indian cinema. From the soul-stirring depths of ‘O Duniya Ke Rakhwale’ to the vibrant energy of ‘Yahoo!’, Rafi Sahab’s versatility remains unparalleled in the history of music. Tonight, we traverse the golden era of melodies as we pay tribute to the legend whose songs - numbering in the thousands - continue to inspire generations.

Honouring Thrissur Rafi: P.K. Jose

On this special night, we remember P.K. Jose, the man who brought the magic of Rafi to the heart of Thrissur. Known as Thrissur Rafi, Jose’s life was a testament to his devotion to the legend. Just as Rafi was known for his humility, Jose is remembered for his dedication to his craft, ensuring that the “Golden Voice” resonated in every corner of our community

Biography – Mohammed Rafi (The Golden Voice)

PERSONAL LIFE

Mohammed Rafi was born in the Indian state of Punjab on 24 December 1924 in an orthodox Muslim family. Rafi married twice and has four sons and three daughters from both of the marriages.

He was a great singer from the age of 11 years only.

His music teachers were ustad Abdul Wahid Khan, Pandit Jiwan Lal Mattoo and Firoze Nizami .

ABOUT

Mohammed Rafi was an Indian playback singer in Bollywood. He sang a wide variety of songs including patriotic songs, ghazals, bhajans and romantic melodies. Though Rafi sang most of his songs in Hindi, but the other languages in which he tried his hands were Assamese, Konkani, Bhojpuri, Odia, Punjabi, Bengali, Marathi, Sindhi, Kannada, Gujarati, Telugu, Magahi, Maithili and Urdu, and even English, Farsi, Arabic, Sinhalese, Creole and Dutch.

CAREER

Rafi's first song was in Punjabi for the film 'Gul Baloch'. In 1945, he made his Hindi film debut with Gaon ki Gori.

Music composer Naushad gave him a Bollywood break in 'Pehle Aap'. Naushad also gave Rafi a chance to sing in a chorus of the song sung by the legendary K.L Saigal- 'Mere Sapnon Ki Rani' of the film 'Shahjahan' (1946). Rafi achieved early success with 'Tera Khilona Toota Balak' in the film 'Anmol Ghadi'.

He became the playback singer of choice for other composers like O.P Nayar, Shankar Jaikishan and Sachin Dev Burman. Rafi and S.D. Burman produced soulful songs for Guru Dutt's films like 'Pyasa' and 'Kaagaz Ka Phool'.

A refined retreat above the hills, crafted for calm, comfort, and connection with nature.

• SUDEEP SANGAMESWARAN

Sudeep Sangameswaran is an Indian vocalist known for his refined retro-style singing and evocative live performances of classic Hindi film melodies. With several years of experience as a live performer, he has earned recognition for his faithful yet expressive interpretations of golden-era and early modern Hindi songs.

He is the founder of Professionals for Charity Band Aarohi, a music collective dedicated to the performance of Indian retro music, primarily in and around Chennai. Through this initiative, he combines musical excellence with a commitment to charitable and cultural causes, presenting carefully curated concerts that celebrate timeless melodies.

Born into a family steeped in music, Sudeep's mother, Karimpuzha Radha, was a playback singer for Malayalam films and an AIR artiste. This rich musical environment, filled with influences of Carnatic, Hindustani, and Indian film music, shaped Sudeep's early years. Though he resisted formal training, his innate love for melodies and his natural ability to connect emotionally with music began to shine through.
